Brief Bio:

Hailing from Texas, Bianca Barnett, the self-proclaimed “mutt” of an Italian/French father and Scots-Irish/German mother, has always had an innate attraction to all things macabre. Having overcome an array of personal tragedies and mishaps throughout her life has gifted her with a delicate charm and indelible strength and willpower. This juxtaposition of raw sex appeal, enigmatic attraction, and emotional fragility add to the charisma and diversity of this sensual siren both on screen and off. Ever the chameleon, Bianca has garnered a following of devoted fans by racking up an impressive resume of quirky, diverse, and challenging roles.

Standing a willowy 5’10” with striking features she began her career early on as a model. Always one to challenge conventional thinking, this risk taker quickly grew discouraged with a profession that relied solely on unattainable superficiality. While on vacation in New Orleans, a psychic told her she had “too much to say” to merely model. Subsequently, she decided to pursue her true dream of becoming an actress, packed up a few belongings and relocated to Los Angeles.

Never one to follow the norm, she consciously selects characters that set her apart from her peers as first seen in her breakout role as the mutated murderess known simply as “Pig Bitch” in Albino Farm. She followed this visceral performance playing everything from a drug addled, manipulative model in Ramzi Abed’s In a Spiral State to a geek loving scream queen in Emily Hagins’ My Sucky Teen Romance, which premiered at the prestigious SXSW Film Festival in 2011. Her upcoming films include Peary Teo’s highly stylized horror film, Dead Inside, and Anthony Brownrigg’s much anticipated Archaic Redemption, which is based on a popular world of Second Life. She recently won a 2011 Golden Cob Award for Best Rising B Movie Actress, which had over 14,000 votes from fans all over the world.

Bianca continues to balance her acting career while maintaining excellent marks studying science and performing art. She also is a celebrity guest at industry-related trade shows and runs her own website, www.biancabarnett.com/, to keep in touch with her fans all over the world. Be sure to keep your eyes peeled for this up and coming actress!
